

Assessing Yourself

STEP 1:

Read each statement on the next page. If you agree, fill in the corresponding square.

You should know what skills, strengths and personality traits you bring to the workplace.

Assessments can help you figure out these things. They are fun tools that show what you're good at, and how well you match different occupations.

No matter what your age or where you are in your career, you can benefit from taking a skills or interest assessment. Remember:

- Don't panic if an assessment shows you careers that you don't like.
- Take a few assessments before making your career decision.
- Talk with an adviser. Discuss your options with family and friends.
- The goal is to get you thinking about careers that you might enjoy.

The interest assessment on the next page is based on Holland's Interest Inventory. When you're done, you'll have an interest profile that matches your interests to career clusters. If you already know your Holland Interest Profile, jump ahead to Step 3.

Assessing Yourself

STEP 2:

Add the columns from the previous page and record the number of filled squares for each letter.

R = Realistic Total: _____

I = Investigative ... Total: _____

A = Artistic Total: _____

S = Social..... Total: _____

E = Enterprising... Total: _____

C = Conventional... Total: _____

STEP 3:

The three letters with the highest scores are your interest profile. Record your profile to the right.

My Interest Profile:

STEP 4:

To the right are descriptions for each interest code. Read the descriptions for the codes in your interest profile.

Realistic people are DOERS.

They are often good at mechanical or athletic jobs. They like to work with things like machines, tools or plants. They like to work with their hands. They are practical and good at solving problems.

Social people are HELPERS.

They like to work with people more than with things. They enjoy training, counseling or curing people. They are often good public speakers. They have helpful, empathetic personalities.

Investigative people are THINKERS. They like to watch, learn and solve problems. They often like to work alone. They tend to be good at math or science, and like analyzing data.

Enterprising people are PERSUADERS. They like to work with other people. They like to influence, lead and perform. They are often assertive and full of energy.

Artistic people are CREATORS. They like to have the freedom to use their creativity to come up with new ideas. They often enjoy performing (theater or music) and the visual arts.

Conventional people are ORGANIZERS. They are good with details and like to work with data. They have good organizing skills and like working in structured situations. They often work well with numbers. They are also good at following instructions.
